Staff Picks: Great Reads for Kids

James Ponti Framed!

A 12-year-old sleuth helps the FBI solve an art heist with his Theory of All Small Things (T.O.A.S.T.). “Don’t spoil the end,” urged my fifth grader, who loved the surprise twist.
(Eileen Finan, writer)

Norton Juster The Phantom Tollbooth

A celebration of learning and common sense—paired with memorable sketches and kooky characters—this classic is a calming (and fun!) voice of reason for kids and adults.
(Kelli Bender, editor)

William Goldman The Princess Bride

“This is my favorite book in all the world, though I have never read it,” begins the perfect novel for reading aloud to your kids whether they’ve seen the film or not.
(Allison Adato, editor)
